At present, the advancement of new technologies and in particular the computer and printing techniques, used in the computer fraud of fake documents are undetectable by the untrained professional. Most public and private controls are absent or ineffective, and the lack of procedures allow document fraud to be a profitable business. Extremely difficult to detect...

In fact, today, scams creating false documents affect all sectors: banking, insurance, retail and medium-sized, notaries, airlines, USE POLE (ASSEDICs) URSSAF, CPAM, CAF ...
Scientific expertise in the document (document forensics/documentoscopie) is the set of activities of research and analysis aimed at:

- Highlight the authenticity of all or part of a document.
- Authentication of signatures, writings, wills, anonymous, etc.
- Identification numbers or signs (X, hooks, etc.).
- Authentication of public and private documents.
- Determine who is the author or authors.
- Determine if a document has been changed physically or chemically.
- Detection of latent fingerprints of writing.
- Retrieve the contents that were destroyed intentionally or accidentally, deleted or manipulated in disguise.
- Meetings of all or part of a document.
- Determine how the piece was created.
- Specify the tools or materials used in its manufacture.
- Establish the chronological order in which they were made all the elements that make part of the document: writings, prints, signatures, seals...
- Investigate any other aspect of the document that can provide data, more about the origin, storage or handling.
